

DIFFERENT TYPES OF

PASSION

ATHLETIC

A deep, enduring love for a sport. This passion is often characterized by an unwavering commitment to training, a fierce desire to excel, and a resilient spirit in the face of adversity. Athletes with a high level of passion typically derive immense satisfaction and fulfillment from their sport, which has the power to lead athletes to extraordinary achievements.

PSYCHOLOGICAL

A strong inclination or desire towards an activity that individuals find important and invest time and energy in. It's seen as the driving force behind achieving goals and overcoming obstacles.

SOCIOLOGICAL

Emotion, shared by a group, community, or society, directed toward a common goal or shared identity. It plays a vital role in shaping social behaviors and influencing societal norms and values

PHILOSOPHICAL

The instinctive, emotional, primitive drives in a human being (including, for example, lust, anger, aggression, and jealousy) which a human being must restrain, channel, develop and sublimate in order to be possessed of wisdom.

ARTISTIC

The powerful emotion that fuels creativity and innovation. It is the inner drive that propels artists to express their thoughts, emotions, and ideas in a unique and creative manner.

BUSINESS

An employee's fervent interest in their role, the goals of the organization, and the industry in which they operate. This passion is often characterized by a high level of energy, commitment, and engagement in work-related activities
